Collision Between Jockeys on the Benning Track.

CORCORANS DEFEAT THE CARROLLS

Mr. Whitney to Experiment With the Rancocas Farm.

CURRENT SPORTING NEWS

Notwithstanding the fact that four favorites were winners at Benning yesterday there is no doubt that the bookmakers were big winners on the day. This statement may seem strange to one not familiar with the betting yesterday, but the odds against two of the best thought of horses were prohibitory; another ran a dead heat and the other was at 7 to 5. This state of affairs resulted in many wild bets on "long shots" and of course this money remained with the "bookies."

With the exception of the third race the original fields were all large, but scratches brought the numbers down to a more satisfactory basis. In the third race five horses were scheduled originally to compete, but Puritan's reputation chased all others but one to tall timber, and as a result the event was merely a gallop for the favorite. Thirteen horses dropped out of the first event and five out of the second, but the latter race still retained seventeen and it proved almost a scramble.

A Chapter of Accidents.

After the big field had finished and were pulled up in the turn, Flying Colors, ridden by Tommy Burns, and Queen's Messenger, ridden by Redfern, came into collision with the result that both jockeys were thrown to the ground and the Chamber filly had her back broken and was subsequently destroyed. It was thought at first that Burns' collar bone was broken, but a thorough examination by the physicians disclosed the fact that the ligaments of the shoulder were only strained. The accident will probably keep Burns out of the saddle for the rest of the meeting at least. Little Redfern also had a close call, but got off with a severe shaking up. Queen's Messenger continued on around the track, went out into the woods and the chase to capture him was quite exciting. Neither jockey can be blamed for the mishap, as it probably resulted from the big field coming together after the riders had let down in their exertions to get by the finishing mark first.

Another big field faced the starter in the last race of the day, and as the result of the crowding at the start, Weber was thrown from the back of Gold Lack. This accident was not a serious one, except to the backers of the Finlen horse, as the jockey got off without injury and the steed continued with the field to the end, even turning around and coming back to the judges' stand to be excused. After trying all morning to break through the clouds the sun finally shone forth in all its splendor in the afternoon, and the warming up of the atmosphere made it more pleasant for the spectators, the at-tendance, doubtless, being increased there-

An Exhilarating Race. The first and second races were the most interesting of the day, the latter event resulting in a gallant struggle between Succasunna and Trauer. Rice and Corcoran had the mounts on these two flyers, respectively, and the clever riders brought their mounts down the stretch as if they were one. From the start until the stretch was reached it looked like a general scram-ble, but as the straight line for home was reached these two horses went out in front to make a grand stand finish. And it proved to be one in every sense of the word. First one and then the other would shove a nose in front until about fifty yards from the finish, when they got into the same stride, and try as the respective jockeys would neither filly could forge ahead the fraction of an inch. In this way they flashed by the judges' stand, and the double numbers, denoting a dead heat, went up. Geneseo made a gallant struggle at the last, but the best she could do was to shake off her numerous companions and Another exhibarating and game struggle was witnessed in the first race. This time was witnessed in the first race. This time the favorite, Sadducee, and Dewey furnished the spectacular scene, and as Burns handled his mount a wee bit cleverer than Cochran he got the decision from the judges by only a nose. This pair of game nags had worked their way to the front by the time the stretch was reached, and it leaked time the stretch was reached, and it looked as though Cochran would carry Dewey to the front, but the McCafferty horse was true to his colors, and managed to retain

In the third race The Purltan was op-posed only by Philma Paxton, and the Mc-Cafferty colors were carried to the front once more in the most hollow fashion, the event being won by fully four lengths.

Thomas Shields' Extinguisher was the fa-Thomas Shields' Extinguisher was the fa-vorite in the fourth race and this event was the only good investment the betting public made on the day. The price against Extinguisher was 7 to 5, and he getting away in good shape continued in the lead from start to finish. The struggle for place money between Fonsoluca and Pretorius was a grand one and the former got the decision only by a short head. McMeekin Wins Easily.

McMeekin was so much better than the rest of the field, in the fifth race, that several of the bookmakers refused to consider him at all as a betting proposition, but a few venturesome pencilers did lay 1 to 5 against him. Joe Wheelock simply wrote opposite McMeekin's name on his slate "For and notified the bettors around him that the Barrick horse was running for him. Tyrshena was nibbled at a little, principally on account of the alluring odds of 12 to 1, but the greater part of the money went up for a place. Scarlet Lilly proved the better choice, as Cochran sent the Tracey filly into second position and received unstinted applause from the female portion of the spectators who played her liberally. The race was only a breather for McMeekin, the Barrick colt going out in front and remaining there until the end.

The last event on the card was simply a cramble and Lady Godiva, well ridden by scramble and Lady Godiva, well ridden by Henderson, captured the purse, while the favorite, Prince Richard, had to be content with second place. A big wad of money was wagered on the Stuart colt, but he got off badly, and although Booker apparently rode a good race, Lady Godiva had the speed and could not be beaten. Shoreham was another well played horse in this cover. was another well played horse in this event but the best he could do was to finish third.

The first race was set back ten minutes on account of the interruption to electric on account of the interruption to electric car travel to the park caused by the fire at the H street railroad crossing and several of the bookmakers and their clerks had quite a time getting to the track. Wagons were pressed into service and many were carried to the H street barns, where a car was turned back, and all finally reached their destination in time. their destination in time.

TO RAISE THOROUGHBREDS. W. C. Whitney Leases the Rancocas

Farm.

William C. Whitney has acquired control for a term of years of the famous Rancocas farm in New Jersey, near Jobstown established many years ago by the late Pierre Lorillard. Mr. Whitney has not bought Rancocas. The farm is not for sale, bought Rancocas. The farm is not for sale, he says. He has merely secured a temporary lease for the purpose of making an experiment which will determine whether a New Jersey farm properly stocked with the best thoroughbred material can regularly turn out race horses of as high class as the establishments of the blue grass belt of Kentucky and Tennessee The history of breeding is against him somewhat. The late D. D. Withers stocked Brookdale farm, in Monmouth county, with some of the finest stallions and brood mares ever got together in this country, and Gideon & Daly at Holmdel, Mr. Lorillard at Rancocas and Lucien Holmdel produced Jean Beraud and High Degree, Brookdale sent Requital to the races, Silverbrook was the birthplace of Henry of Navarre, and several good horses bred at Rancocas in Mr. Lorlliard's time won more or less fame in England, but none of these farms has ever been able to produce great race horses year after year with the regularity which less elaborately and stocked equipped establishments in Tennessee and Kentucky do it.

BASKET BALL.

Corcoran Cadets Defeat the Carroll Institute Players.

Corcoran Cadet Corps basket bal eam scored a victory over the team from Carroll Institute last night by 25 to 9. The game was the second of the series in the District league and proved the superior eam work of the soldier boys.

The Corcorans started out with the deternination to make a high score. The Carrolls put up a game fight, but they were no match for the Corcorans. With a little more practice in field work, however, the Carrolls will pull up and be with the crack teams before long. Zell of the Corcorans scored the first goal from the field, making a difficult play. Boyle also did fine work and succeeded in landing three goals from the field during Thompson of the Carrolls did the main rtion of the work for his team and landed the nine points made by his team. The line

OVERWHELMED BY APPLICATIONS. Many Requests for Tickets for the West Point-Annapolis Game. The War and Navy departments and individual army and navy officers on duty here have been overwhelmed by applications for tickets of admission to the annual foot ball game between the West Point and Annapolis cadets, which will take place on the 30th instant on Franklin field. Philadelphia. A number of senators and representatives in Congress were among the most importunate ticket seekers, trying to meet requests from their constituents. The officers are desirous that it shall be known that the tickets are issued only from the two academies at West Point and Annapolis, and that the officers here who receive tickets procure them in their capacity as members of the athletic associations in a very limited number.

Thomas H. Williams, jr., president of the new California Jockey Club, is about to try an experiment in preparing horses for the track. Mr. Williams is a believer in the theory that horses should not be put on the track until they reached their maturity. He believes that two-year-olds are neither strong nor wise enough to do themselves justice. Mr. Williams intends buying a number of yearlings and colts and sending them to Oregon. It is his intention to allow the horses to browse on the rich grass and gain strength roaming over the coun-He will not permit them to grow try. He will not permit them to grow wild nor will he have them trained. He will simply have them ridden from time to time for the purpose of accustoming them to work they will have to do on the track, where he is confident they will demonstrate the correctness of his theory.

Yankee Trainers Coming Home. The Atlantic transport liner Minneapolis, eaving London for New York next Thursday, will have among her passengers Trainer Enoch Wishard and John Huggins, trainer for W. C. Whitney. It is doubtful if either returns to England, although in each case a return to Great Britain is contingent upon arrangements that may be made in the United States. The Minneapolis will also carry J. Mackey, who has bought in Great Britain a large number of horses for J. B. Haggin's California and Kentucky stud farms.

Billy Moore to Meet Gans. The Eureka Athletic Club of Baltimore has matched Billy Moore, the crack St. Louis lightweight, to meet the invincible Joe Gans Friday night. Moore is in fine condition, having been in training for his bout with Kid Parker of Denver. He wants to meet Terry McGovern. He says he knows Gans is clever, but is confident he will be able to knock him out.

O'Brien and McKeever to Fight. The prospect of seeing two such clever fighters as Jack O'Brien and Charlie G. McKeever meet before the National Sporting Club is interesting the sporting public in London. Arrangements for a limited bout between them were practically completed yesterday in London, and the two men will meet in that city early in January.

O'Brien has never been defeated since his arrival in England, and he has defeated so many Englishmen that it has been necessary to import Americans.

McKeever is wonderfully confident of de-feating O'Brien, and the latter does not seem as confident of beating his fellow-Philadelphian as he has his other antagonists. Should O'Brien defeat McKeever he will probably meet Kid McCoy. Foot Ball.

Columbia's reversal of form still continues. The game between Lafayette and the New Yorkers should be an interesting one. Foot ball enthusiasts will witness a sensational game when the Philadelphia and Homestead professionals line up against each other next Saturday. The two teams will be composed almost entirely of ex-college players.

The value of the quarter-back kick was never better illustrated than in the Indian game Saturday, when Pennsylvania's first two touchdowns were made by it. This simple trick overcame the vastly superior playing of the Indians.

playing of the Indians.

In Saturday's game Johnson, the Indian quarter back, was detected wearing iron ankle braces. This being a breach of the rules, the officials put him out of the game, but Capt. Davidson leniently allowed him to return. Johnson repaid this kindness three minutes later by scoring a touchdown Yale's first touchdown in the Princeton game Saturday was indirectly due to a piece of very clever headwork by Swan. When Princeton fumbled the ball Swan unexpectedly kicked it from under the Princeton end, who was about to fall on it, and ton end, who was about to fall on it, and then captured it himself and made twenty yards by his forethought.

As was the case last year, the Harvard-Yale game will again decide the championship of the "Big Four." Harvard defeated Pennsylvania and Yale won from Princeton, so that the victor in Saturday's game will be the undisputed champion. A foot ball tournament could not have brought about a better solution of the question.

Col. George Halleyrand Stallings still has a wheelbarrow full of equity in Detroit stock, but he has lost his job as one of the king bees in the American hive. Of course there are a whole lot of thick-skulled mortals in this world of ours, and some of them are trying to figure out this problem: "If the Detroit Club made $38,000 this year, how did it happen that neither James D. Burns nor his erstwhile associate Color. this morning, and this feature will be brought to a close before tonight. A number of specimens of poultry were judged yesterday and the work is progressing on that line satisfactorily today. The Belgian hares were also judged this morning. Many Curious Scenes.

The hall presented many curious sights during the exhibition last evening. Some of the birds could not reconcile the hour with the character of the light under which they were being inspected. They tried to sleep in their cramped quarters, but the majority of them finally gave up and blinked displeasure at the bright light and disdain at the sightseers with their beady eyes. Some of them, more intelligent than the rest, or, perhaps, veterans in the exhibition business, calmly lay down on their sides and put their heads to the back of the cages and in this way managed to forget their troubles.
Some of the pigeons secured their liberty yesterday, and this morning one of the handsome pheasants left his cage for the nandsome pheasants left his cage for the cornice that runs around the hall near the ceiling. The game birds were judged yesterday and Mr. Morgan Stinemetz of this city secured all the first prizes in this class. Mr. Stinemetz has the most complete collection of bantams in the show, some of them-the Silver Seabrights especially-being exceptionally valuable birds. A red pyle game bantam in this collection is noted as a prize nner in many shows in this country and has also been honored at the Crystal Palace in London. Eddie Schmid also shows some fine bantams, possessing the only black-tailed Japanese in the exhibition.

Allen C. McLean's flying homer, Hardy, displays the bird's diploma on his cage. It shows that Hardy holds the record for 875 miles from Punta Gorda, Fla., to its own-er's lofts. The bird made the distance in three days, twenty-one hours and thirty-seven minutes. Mr. McLean also displays three silkies, which are among the curious features of the show. They resemble more than anything else a large powder puff, and the texture of their feathers is about the Goodyear, Mrs. Reene, Mrs. Chauncey, Mrs. Faunce, Mrs. Benner, Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Sprates, Mrs. Maloy, Mrs. Keinle, Mrs. Richards, Mrs. Raitz, Mrs. Ashford, Mrs. Keeter and the Misses Taylor, Speak and same as the down used in such an article.

Cadmus was arrested and held here on a charge that he was a fugitive from justice, and a requisition was sent by the governor of Michigan for his return to that jurisdiction to answer a charge of failing to support his children. The petition al-leges that Cadmus was granted a divorce from his wife, and that notwithstanding he has always expressed himself as willing to support his children, the wife has refused to allow him to do so. The wife, he claims, is wealthy and able to care for the children, but she has instituted these proceedings, he alleges, in a spirit of spite and per-secution. A similar attempt, it is claimed, was made in Ohio to hold this petitioner, but failed. The petitioner therefore asks the court to set him at liberty, claiming that he has violated no law of this or any other jurisdiction. The petition will be heard by Chief Justice Bingham Thursday next, at 10 o'clock, when he will also decide the question of honoring the requisition of the Michigan Sergeant Geo. A. Hemstreet of the Bay City, Mich., police force arrived here yes-terday to take Cadmus in charge.

CHARGE OF HIGHWAY ROBBERY. Defendants Arraigned in Police Court

and Waive Examination. Forest Elmore, George Taylor, Martin Campbell and Charles Sanders, all colored, waived an examination in the Police Court yesterday on a charge of highway robbery, and were held by Judge Scott for the grand jury. Bond was fixed in the sum of $1,500 each.

It was charged that the quartet the night of November 9 held up and robbed John F. Bailess, on the Long bridge, while he was on his way to his home near Linconia, Va. Mr. Bailess was badly hurt and has been under treatment in the Emergency Hospital until today.

After rendering Mr. Bailess unconscious

the defendants, it is alleged, made off with his money, amounting to $12.52. They were captured the next day by the police of the second precinct. A soldier from Fort Riley, Kansas, shot and killed two citizens of Junction City. He shouted that he wanted to be killed
